MUTUAL RESPECT IN ATHLETICS

BY A. L. TRESTER

Commissioner Indiana High School Athletic Association

Athletic games between high schools are designated often as "battles" and the players are designated as "warriors" or "gladiators." The coaches are called "generals," the principals are called "big chiefs," the officials are called "majors" and the crowds are called "mobs." These appellations may be found in the dictionary. Of course, our games, coaches, principals and players and officials are called a number of miscellaneous names not found in the dictionary. It seems best, all things considered, to omit these latter names in this article.

Name-calling is not an athletic activity and should not be a school activity. Any activity connected with school work should be on a plane far above the one of name-calling. If this name-calling really describes our athletic activities, then we should do some house-cleaning of a thorough nature. If this name-calling does not describe accurately, then we should initiate some changes.

Since the situation is as it is, what can we do to change it for the better? First of all, it needs to be said that this job is a difficult one and one that cannot be completed overnight or once for all time. There are some things that can be done and some of them are listed below:

1. Establishment of the idea, the understanding and the practice that an athletic game is only a game and not a matter of life or death for the player, the coach, the school, the official, the fan, the community, the state or the nation. There are many things connected with education more important than our games.

2. A serious attempt to build mutual respect between and among all parties connected with athletic games. Why should players consider other players as enemies? Why cannot coaches and the principals of one school respect the coaches and the principals of another school? Why should there be opposition between coaches and officials? Why should everybody connected with one school or one community have no faith in anyone connected with another school or another community?

3. Build up the idea that rules and regulations are meant to be observed and not to be broken. The observance of rules by players, coaches, officials and others is basic, and has meaning and promise in the improvement of the present situation in our athletic games. Observance of rules by all concerned will eliminate the necessity of enforcement and will ultimately eliminate much name-calling. Instill into the student body that the right to play with others pre-supposes the obligation to observe the rules and abide by the decisions.

4. Teach students and others the following procedures: (1) When you win a game, brag a little, step a little brisker for a little period of time, then forget it; (2) when you lose a game, feel a little downcast, take a back seat for a short period of time, then forget it.

5. Bring to the attention of all concerned that the mere observance of the rules in a game is not enough. There is a large area located above the rules that needs understanding and cultivation. Genuine sportsmanship will be found in this large area.

6. Elevate officiating to the dignified plane on which it belongs. Officiating is a respectable piece of work and must be honored. The elevation of officiating requires the assistance of the officials, the coaches, the players, the spectators, the press and the radio.

WHAT MAKES THE GAME

"I fumbled," said the sad-eyed lad,
"And lost the golden chance I had!"
"That's quite all right," his coach replied,
"I understand how hard you tried.
Forget it now! Go back and fight
With all your nerve and all your might.

"Take hold of this consoling thought:
If every ball that's thrown were caught;
If no one faltered; no one fell;
If every play that's tried went well;
If gain with every venture came;
There would be nothing to the game.

"What makes us class the game as Play
The golden chances thrown away;
The fumbled ball; the slight mistake
Which men however skillful make;
The faulty judgment and the will
To wait and work for victory still.

"And so with life! If all were plain,
If men perfection could attain,
It neither doubt nor loss nor fear
Should ever test our courage here,
If we knew all, and all could see,
We'd die from dull monotony."
—August Henry Ackman.

THIRST, LAST AND ALWAYS

Fifty years of knowing how in Atlanta
—that's behind Red Rock Cola. You know how critical of beverages they are in Atlanta! That's where Red Rock made its name.
Now we bring it to you in the BIG BOTTLE—two full glasses for a nickel. It's your THIRST CHOICE—first, last and always!
