Fathers, Take a Bow!

We Americans have pretty well got over the idea of the "self-made" man. Used to be we bragged on anybody who worked his way up from poverty and obscurity into the top of the heap, but we are a little wiser now.

Fact is, there is no "self-made" man; and our most successful men are the first to admit it. Nobody climbs to the top without a lot of help.

Somebody built a fire under them somewhere along the line; maybe it was a teacher, a clergyman, a public-spirited business man who took an interest in them in those critical younger years. Maybe they read a book.

Old Benjamin Franklin, who would certainly pass for a "self-made man" at first glance, even gave credit to the "little woman."

"Behind every man stands a woman; if you would be successful, ask your wife!" old Benny said.

But first and foremost, all of us are sons of our parents. Basically, our native intelligence, our body build, our general health and vigor, come from our ancestors; and the more immediate the ancestors, the more we get from them.

Years ago I saw a tall figure walking down the street, about half a block in front of me. I yelled, "Hey, Jim!"

But instead of my friend Jim, it was his father, also named Jim. Young Jim had even picked up his father's gait, his way of carrying himself!

The big brains in psychiatry today are leaning more and more to the idea of heredity, at least for our basic patterns. And the life-insurance figure-boys have come up with this one:

"The best way to guarantee a long life is to be born of a family that is also long-lived!"

Every boy on that Bellaire football team out there — and the same goes for the Wheeling kids and every kid in the world — owes whatever he has to his forefathers.

If my kid were on a football team, I'd be so cocky my friends couldn't stand me! For I'd brag how my boy has inherited his rugged body, his fight, his coordination, quick intelligence, his will to win—all from me, his Old Man!

And I'd have modern science to back me up

Fathers, take a bow!

SENIORS — GOOD LUCK

Today is the last home appearance of a number of our Senior Football players. We thank them for their cooperation and steadfast efforts over their several years in athletic contests. They have been good sports and loyal players for Dear Old Bellaire High.

Band Mothers

The band today is paying tribute to those who so greatly contributed their time, effort and money for the support of the football team and band. We know that all of you are doing your share but there is need for an organization to carry out the many projects which keep these activities going. It is through the effort of these outside organizations that much financial assistance is given.

The Bellaire High School Band Mothers Club is the organization which helps the band. The members of the Bellaire Big Red Boosters help whenever asked and have been especially helpful in providing a place for the meeting of the Band Mothers and give assistance in many of their projects.

The Band Mothers have accepted the responsibility for keeping the band in uniforms. This is a difficult project since each uniform cost approximately $_____.

This money is not allowed to be taken from any tax money received by the school. Many people wonder why more money is not available from the athletic fund. We know the many improvements which have been made here at the stadium and the many others that are necessary. The athletic department pays for two busses used by the band for the away games. Last year the Band Mothers paid for one extra bus to East Liverpool and this year will pay the bill for the extra bus to New Philadelphia and Martins Perry games.

Each year the Band Mothers buy some new equipment. This year they purchased a carrying case for one of the bass horns. This will add greatly to the life and appearance of this instrument. The band members have made three other cases and will make more. The Band Mothers buy the needed parts.

After the concert season is over the Band Mothers prepare and serve the band and orchestra members with a banquet. The music awards are made at this time and a small gift is presented to each Senior.

We are pleased to see so many new mothers joining this organization. It is really the duty of every mother of a band or orchestra member to take part.

The Band Mothers wish to thank the public for their support in all their projects.
