Now that I've surpassed Lou Gehrig's record of 2,130 consecutive games, there's nothing left but to take out Cal Ripken Jr.'s record of 2,632. Only 393 games to go! That should be in 2034. Hope to see you there!

UPDATED: 02.25.25

Years indicated by names reflect last year of the season year, therefore '25 would be the 2024-2025 season. The list of varsity boys' players includes players as far back as 1906.

Due to inaccuracies in the early BELJUANS, mistakes might appear in names, varsity status, or years played. Should you believe there's a mistake or can supply additional information, please contact Thomas E. Rataczak, tom@therats-nest.org, or call 740.391.2930.

Years that are underlined are years beginning with 2000. All other years are 1900.

Players I stated: 378
Players I watched: 116

Total Players: 494

STOP!

Before you turn the page, let me explain something. This idea came to me early in the 2024-2025 season when I was enjoying my favorite pre-game activity: sitting at the scorer's table at Bellaire with no one around, looking out onto the floor, replaying games and visualizing players I had the honor of watching over the past 55 years. [I guess that in itself is a little weird!] But anyway, I thought "who were best fifty players you watched over those years?"

The key word is WATCHED. I've been told that Nemo Coyne (1953) was the best, being Bellaire's first All-Ohio player. Or that Dibby Powell (1952) was the best ball handler ever, averaging over twenty assists a game. Both of these were verified by Coach Claire Cribbs. But I never watched them play. The earliest I can recall was 1956, when my dad would take me to games at home and let me sit in the balcony while he collected tickets.

Also understand that your perspective plays a huge part. From a ten year old hanging over balcony rail watching Lee Patrone, Clyde Thomas, and John Wilkes to sitting on the floor at the Schottenstein Center watching Nate Davis, Aaron Agnew, and the Fisher brothers, how you view the game changes.

And that's with this list. I'm not talking about the highest scorers, the leading rebounders. I'm talking about guys who were unselfish in play, elevated the play of their teammates, or played with an aura that couldn't be seen on the stat sheet.

I started out wanting to rank them from 1-50. After the first three or four names surfaced, I realized that was an impossible task.

So I went to first team, second team, etc. Another debacle. One team would be all guards, another all forwards. And how do you equate fifth team with seventh team?

Another experiment. If they were going one-on-one, who would win? Another approach. If we were playing on the playground, who would you pick for your team? Are you understanding the problem?

So I decided to play it safe and just go with alphabetical order. But then another roadblock. After I hit about thirty players, everyone started to look the same. I couldn't decide if one player was equal or greater than the players I already had. So here I am. Stuck for the current time at 42. But I wanted to get to this point in case I don't return for another season.

ONE MORE THING: This isn't meant to offend anyone, eliminate anyone, disrespect anyone. These are just players who stood out in my mind at this point in time. Next year this list could look drastically different.

And should you be reading this (it's not actually published but rather appears in my stat book each year) and have strong opinions as to other players, I would love to hear your arguments. Having watched and stated over 490 players and being 79+ years old, I'm certain I've left out a few.

RAT'S DEFENSIVE DEMONS

There are no stats for these players. No points, no rebounds, no double doubles. They don't make stats for playing your heart out, pushing youself to the max to defend an opponent. Harassing him from the time he stepped on the court. Diving on the floor for loose balls, no regard for your body. Floor burns upon floor burns. Tongue hanging out, sweat pouring off, feeling like your heart is getting ready to explode. True grit. No headline. Just the satisfaction of knowing you gave everything you had for the team, win or lose. These are my defensive demons, who left everything on the floor.

DOUBLE/DOUBLE/TRIPLE

When I was doing my research/thinking on my top 50 players I've watched, I started to wonder how many of them recorded double doubles or better in their careers. And, as I have no life once basketball season concludes, I started to go back through the stats and check.

Now some will argue that it's easy for the big boys to get a double with points and rebounds. And with some validity. However, I maintain that it's just as easy, if not easier, for the guards to record them with points, assists, and steals.

But regardless, it's still an impressive accomplishment, and I think you'll be surprised to see what I found. I'll be working on this for a few more weeks, so it's bound to change. I calculated the times they recorded the double double versus the percentage of games they played. And, if my stats are accurate, there's only been ONE player to record a triple double! So turn the page and enjoy.

Disclaimer: I only wish we had accurate game stats prior to 1979, as I would love to see where some of the earlier players ranked. But alas, we don't.

Years indicated by names reflect last year of the school year, therefore, '24 would be the 2023-2024 school year. The list includes varsity players as far back as 1909.

Due to inaccuracies in the early Beljuans, mistakes might appear in names or varsity status. Should you believe there's a mistake or can supply additional information, please contact Tom Rataiczak, @ theratsnest.org or 740.391.2930.

Years that are underlined are years beginning with 2000. All other years are 1900.
